RIGHT & READY

The season has begun to turn. Only shadows of summer remain. The earth looks in on itself under the crackling layer of fallen leaves. It is autumn. Without meaning to, without really wanting to, we begin to think about earthier colours--clothier clothes. This transition period is a delicate one. It is sometimes difficult to find exactly the right thing to wear. For the season of change we are offering dark cotton suits--inspired by the cowboy jacket and jeans. They are equally wearable on sun drenched and rain drenched days. With warm shirts or sweaters they can brave cool days, with light tops they can brave the warm ones. Like the heroes of the Old West you can be ready for anything.
